

India is an ancient country rich in nonumental heritage. The famous monuments always merit a visit, because they are the speaking stones of Indias authentic architectural and historical details. These magnificent buildings were built by different rulers. Each ruler had left his indelible mark on the monuments that were built during his time. It is not very difficult to distinguish a monument built by the Mughals from that built by the British. Almost all regions in India can boast of some historical monument or fort. A variety of architectural forms that have remained unchanged through the ages can be seen throughout India
