Not illustrated. 1900 Excerpt: ... delivered by men who have been sneered at, interrupted, and insulted localise they object to this war. The speeches of such men as Sir Edward Clarke, the right hon. Member for Bodmin, the hon..Member for Cockemioth, and the hon..Member for Battersea have aroused in the breasts of Irishmen the feeling that, after all, there are some men in this House and country sufficiently brave to face popular disfavour and to be on the right side, though for the time being that side may be in a miserable minority. Do the hon. Gentlemen who vote this money so lightly and regard the prospects of the war with so much satisfaction and confidence, ever remember the expenditure indulged i in by this country over one hundred years ago, when the colonial dependencies of this nation in America were attacked as the people of the South African Republics are being attacked to-day? Some of the most fervent and eloquent speeches ever delivered in this House by British statesmen were delivered against the policy of exasperation and brute force practised in America. It was predicted that the policy would lead to the loss of the, American colonies, and that prediction was amply justified. The policy now being pursued in South Africa is the same in many respects as that which lost you the American colonies. The speeches then delivered by Burke and Chatham might have been delivered at this very day in regard to the war in South Africa. If this policy is pursued to the bitter end the result will be not only that you will fail permanently to subdue the people of I the Transvaal and the Orange Free Stato, i but that you will in all probability ultiI mately loso your control over Cape Town, Natal, Rhodesia, and every single square yard of territory in South Africa. WThy do I say that Becau...
